Spurred by Record-High Growth, Scenario Learning Moves to New Headquarters

Demand for safety and compliance solutions in schools and workplaces fuels company's growth, expansion into international markets

Cincinnati, Ohio (Aug. 13, 2014) – Scenario Learning, LLC, the leading developer of safety and compliance solutions for schools and workplaces, has moved to new state-of-the-art headquarters to accommodate the company's record-setting growth. The larger offices enable Scenario Learning to further expand its staff as the company continues increasing its domestic market share and expands into international markets.

Brian Taylor and Greg Estep started Scenario Learning in 2004 as a two-person, self-funded startup in Cincinnati. As parents and entrepreneurs, Taylor and Estep shared a passion for making schools safer. The pair started with one product, the SafeSchools Online Staff Training System, for K-12 schools. The program helps schools simplify their mandatory staff training by delivering expert-authored courses on important school safety topics like School Violence Prevention; Bloodborne Pathogens; Bullying Prevention and more. Because of the training program's tremendous success, Taylor and Estep developed a suite of complementary programs that customers requested, including solutions for bullying and incident reporting, accident reporting, and SDS management.

The company has now expanded into the postsecondary market with the SafeColleges product line, and also serves non-academic institutions with its SafePersonnel product line, which brings the company's award-winning products to workplaces and municipalities.

"From the beginning, increasing safety has been our primary mission," said Taylor, Scenario Learning CEO. "Response from schools has been tremendous, as evidenced by the company's accelerating growth, and we're excited about the opportunities ahead. We're pleased to know that our solutions have helped schools across the nation increase safety for their students, teachers and staff, and that now we'll be impacting schools around the world as well."

With a 99 percent customer renewal rate, 48 employees and sales increasing at 30 percent annually over the past five years, Scenario Learning's growth necessitated larger headquarters. The modern office space facilitates employee collaboration and streamlines communications, which has already increased productivity, and will allow for continued company expansion.
